

July 2018

Dear Prospective Client,

During our mother's battle with lung cancer, she would regularly send updates to friends and family of her diagnosis, prognosis, and treatments. After she passed, we continued these mass emails to relay information regarding our progress on the overwhelming task of liquidating her estate. Here's a portion of what we shared with everyone in May:

We're happy to report that the estate sale was a success. Hiring the services of Kathy Baldrige at Lifetime Liquidations proved to be an invaluable asset. For 2 weeks, she spearheaded the organization of our Mom's belongings and executed the 3-day sale on our behalf. Throughout our interactions with her, she treated us with kindness and compassion while ensuring Mom's earthly possessions found a second home. We've truly appreciated her help and highly recommend her to anyone anticipating a downsizing or liquidation in their near future.

Our family fully understood the value of Kathy's contributions when we swung by the house while in the area after an intimate burial service. Initially, we didn't think much of experiencing the estate sale underway. When we arrived, though, we were overcome with emotion as we watched strangers walk among simple yet cherished possessions. I recall tearing up as a woman held a favorite sweater. I wanted to share with this woman all the memories I had of my mother-in-law wearing that sweater. I wanted her to know how special that simple sweater is, was. I stood there a bit stunned with the reality that in a few days it would all be gone. Kathy recognized our grief and empathetically assured us all was well. As we left the house, we unanimously agreed that it would have been impossible to have done ourselves what Kathy was doing for us. Kathy had become a line of defense at a vulnerable time in our grief – for which we're forever grateful.

Lifetime Liquidations was truly an invaluable asset to us in an otherwise exhausting and overwhelming experience. Do yourself and your family a service by letting Kathy and her team do what they do best.

Sincerely,

Rita's Kids
